Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses by Hackney Council

Issue 269 28 November 2011

Winter warmer

Janet Parker and Violet Mayard share a joke – and a hot cup of tea – at the Hackney Homes' winter warmer event at the Round Chapel in Lower Clapton

OLDER residents turned up at the Round Chapel, Lower Clapton, in their hundreds to enjoy a day of fun activities and festive goodie bags.

Visitors to the event, held on 16 November, were given free scarves, bags of fruit, hot water bottles and delicious soup to keep everyone warm.

Hackney Homes staff were also on hand to assist residents with repair queries and offer them free plants to brighten up their homes.

Haggerston resident, Evangeline Tsaku, 67, said: "It was a great event – I really like the way Hackney Homes remembers us at this time of the year. It's nice to know that our welfare is important to them." For more info and pictures turn to pages 6&7.

MORE STARS SIGNED

RAPPER Tinie Tempah and band Florence + The Machine are the latest stars to sign up for the BBC Radio 1 Hackney Weekend 2012 on 23 and 24 June.

They will join a cast of over 100 UK and international artists, including Hackney-born star Leona Lewis, and award-winning singer Plan B, who will take to the stage at the BBC's biggest ever free event on Hackney Marshes.

The majority of the free tickets will be allocated to residents, with a focus on young people.

In addition to the concert, the Council has worked closely with the BBC to ensure a wide range of opportunities will be available to the borough's youth, including the creation of an arts and media academy, that every young person in the area will be invited to.

Opening its doors on 1 June, the academy will be the Hackney base for Radio 1 and 1Xtra until the main event starts, and will offer a programme of workshops and sessions on subjects including business, the arts, career development and media skills.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "I'm pleased that the close partnership between the BBC and the Council has made this event possible and will create a whole range of opportunities for our young residents to get involved."

Jason Carter, Radio 1's Event Director for 2012, added: "Our activity in Hackney will be the most ambitious programme of events in the station's history, and our work across the community is as important as the main live music concert in the park."

Leona Lewis and Plan B will be joined by Radio 1/1Xtra DJ Trevor Nelson MBE, and European triple jump champion Phillips Idowu, who were both born in Hackney, to act as ambassadors for the event.

Step into Christmas

STRUGGLING to think of things to do this Christmas? Hackney is serving up a cracking spell of entertainment and events for all ages and pockets this festive season...

At Stoke Newington Town Hall, the party starts with a Christmas Tea Dance, featuring Mr Wonderful, on 7 December. A Christmas market on 10-11 December will see stallholders sell arts and crafts, vintage clothing, gifts and food, while visitors can donate presents to Santa's Grotto for children at Homerton hospital.

Revellers can hear big band songs from the Five Star Swing Band (pictured) on 15 December; a silent disco, where the crowd listens to the music on headphones, on 17 December; Hackney Proms on 18 December; and a concert from London Gay Men's Chorus on 20 December.

Sixty shipping containers are being stripped and refitted to create Boxpark, a giant pop-up shopping mall. Top sports brands, independent retailers, community units, charities and places to eat will be packed into the makeshift mall at The Goodyard, Shoreditch. A secret, chart-topping celebrity guest is set to open the mall on 3 December and organisers are offering a one-week, 20 per cent off on purchases promotion. As well as a place to pick up some Christmas bargains, the project is supported by the Council and will deliver more than 200 jobs for young people in the borough.

Over at St John-at-Hackney Churchyard Gardens, Hackney Singers bring out the Christmas carols on 3-4 and 17 December; Hackney Homemade Christmas Market offers mulled wine and handmade presents on 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18 December; residents can get their skates on when a free ice rink opens over 10-11 December; and Father Christmas parks up his sleigh to meet this year's good girls and boys on 10-11 and 17-18 December.

Clarence Road businesses and Clarence Mews Studios are selling clothes, furniture, artwork and mulled wine on 3-4 December. Characters from Empire panto 'Cinderella' will make appearances at the Narrow Way and Kenmure Road on 10 December.

Other events include workshops, carols and mince pies at Sutton House Craft Fair on 3 December; a festive trail at Hackney Museum on 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18 December; and Hackney Picturehouse is holding a charity food and clothes collection to help communities in East Africa.

Pupils from Bridge Academy attend a job fair for next year's Olympic and Paralympic Games

MORE than 200 Hackney schoolchildren already know what they will be doing next summer: supporting the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The young people were offered work at the Olympic Park, after attending job shows organised by the Council, with support from charity The East London Communities Organisation (TELCO), and the London

Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG).

Over 400 pupils attended the events at Stoke Newington School and Bridge Academy – with more set to take place at the Mossbourne and Petchey academies before the end of the year.

Other residents will also be able to apply for the thousands of upcoming jobs for the Games in sectors such as cleaning, catering, retail, hospitality and security. Around 400 local people have been offered jobs since this summer.

Clr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "The opportunities are not just for students – everyone is welcome to apply – but recruitment closes in March next year, so residents will need to be quick to make the most of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

A recruitment desk is currently open at the Hackney Service Centre, Hillman Street, every Monday from 11am to 2pm, and the jobs team will be making visits to Kingsland Shopping Centre from now until Christmas.

News in brief

National public sector strike to go ahead on 30 November

A NATIONAL public sector strike was set to take place on 30 November, as 'Hackney Today' went to press.

Trade unions including Unison, Unite, GMB and the Association of Teachers and Lecturers voted to take strike action due to spending cuts and proposed changes to pension schemes for public sector workers.

The action may result in disruptions to Council services, while schools, job centres and other public offices could be closed.

A Hackney Council spokesperson said: "The Council is putting arrangements in place to protect delivery of services, especially to our most vulnerable residents. We are expecting the impact to be minimal, but with a reduced number of staff we are advising residents with non-urgent enquiries to contact the Council on another day."

A normal waste collection service is likely to run, but residents and businesses are advised to contact the Hackney Service Centre on: 020 8356 3000; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk to check how services have been affected.

New Dalston Library is set to open to the public in January

DALSTON CLR James, the first new library to be built in Hackney for over 20 years, is set to open its doors in late January.

This brand new, state of the art facility – which will also house Hackney Archives – will be twice the size of the old library that it is replacing.

The new building will feature separate adult and children's libraries, a teen zone and a 'quick picks' area.

This is designed for people with only a few minutes to spare so they can pop into the library, select a best seller and issue it to themselves using the state-of-the-art self service technology.

There will also be a wide range of books, study materials and online reference, as well as education facilities.

To find out more about the Council's libraries call: 020 8256 3000; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/libraries

Three gang members jailed

THREE Hackney gang members have been jailed for possession of a sub-machine gun stashed near a children's playground.

The Sterling 9mm gun was found on the Pembury Estate, E9, with live rounds, a knife and balaclava by Hackney police forces on 6 April.

Forensic results and an investigation by Hackney's Operation Bantam gun and drug unit linked the gun and ammunition to three suspects: Tyrell Goather, 21, of Thomas Place, E9; Helal Miah, 17, of Clarence Road, E5; and Philip Johnson, 18, of Templeton

Helal Miah. 17

House, E9. It is understood the trio were part of the 'Pembury Boys' gang.

At Snaresbrook Crown Court on 11 November, Goather was jailed for five years for owning a deadly

East End Cabaret presents 'The Revolution Will Be Sexual' at the official opening of the Arcola Tent, as part of the Art in Empty Spaces initiative

THE latest addition to Hackney's thriving theatre scene officially opened its reclaimed door on 17 November.

The Arcola Tent in Ashwin Street, Dalston, is a 300-capacity theatre under canvas, with an interior largely constructed using rescued materials from across London.

The Tent, sister of the award-winning Arcola

Theatre, opened with a colourful performance by 'East End Cabaret' who delighted the audience with salacious tales told through song.

Future performances will centre around a programme of comedy and cabaret, with community groups putting on shows too.

Leyla Nazli, Executive Producer of Arcola, said: "The idea behind the Tent is to bring people together in a fun and friendly setting to enjoy performances that are interactive and accessible. We want there to be a rich mix of both established and up-and-coming companies and artists.

"We've opened the door to community theatre groups to run performances in the space, with the only cost coming from a split in ticket sales."

The Council has given the Arcola Tent the land at no cost for one year as part of its 'Art in Empty Spaces' initiative, designed to transform empty properties or spaces into something useful and meaningful.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "The Arcola Tent is a great addition to all the other cultural locations in Hackney."

"It creates an innovative performance space for the community to engage with. Bringing the community together is the very essence of the Art in Empty Spaces initiative."

“We've opened the door to community theatre groups to run performances”

ON THE GO?

MORE than 140 people took part in a Hackney event in response to the riots that spread across the country this summer.

The gathering, which took place on 14 November at Stoke Newington Town Hall, brought together members of the Council, police, local faith and community groups and MPs to learn about initial findings from research, carried out by Ipsos MORI, aimed at identifying the causes behind the August disturbances in the borough.

The day also provided an opportunity to discuss key issues emerging from the research.

The event was opened by Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe. Presentations followed from the Council; Hackney police; Ipsos MORI, the Independent Police Complaints Commission; and the Riots, Communities and Victims Panel.

The talks gave an overview of events that took place in the borough, along with a national picture of the disturbances.

Delegates identified a number of issues which they felt needed to be addressed. These included:

- improving police and community relations
- bringing different parts of the community together
- supporting young people's aspirations through mentoring
- increasing access to apprenticeships and job opportunities for young people

- supporting parents with co-ordinated intervention for families who need it most.

A presentation by Reuben Tapper, from Immediate Theatre, who works with young fathers and sent them into barber shops to discuss why the riots happened, received a warm round of applause from the audience. So did a presentation by one of the young people who attended.

A working group drawn from the Council and key partners is now reviewing feedback from the meeting, which will be included in a report by the independent Riots, Communities and Victims Panel for the Prime Minister.

Panel members are touring the country talking to people who were affected by the disturbances. As part of this process, they visited Hackney on 16 November to meet with Council and community representatives. The panel is set to deliver its initial report on 28 November, with a final version due next March.

Darra Singh, panel Chair, said: "Our visit to Hackney helped us to consider why a small minority of residents rioted, and to think about what lessons can be learnt for the future. I encourage anyone who was affected by the riots to read the report and tell us what you think."

Old gold coin is given a new home at Hackney Museum

A RARE gold coin from the 'Hackney hoard' will go on show at Hackney Museum from 29 November – the only part of the collection to go on public display.

The 20 dollar 'Double-Eagle' has been donated by Max Sulzbacher, son of the original owner who fled Nazi Germany in the 1930s and buried the treasure in a Hackney back garden during World War Two. The rest of the hoard, which is being auctioned on the same day, consists of 77 coins, minted in the United States between 1854 and 1913.

They were discovered in 2007, and made national headlines when, in an unprecedented move, the coins were returned to the original owner's family under 'Treasure Trove' law.

The coin will be on display, along with the original jar and papers they were found in, and a poignant British penny, dated 1940, found in the remains of the Sulzbacher's bombed out home.

Wheelchair badminton player granted training membership

A WHEELCHAIR badminton player and coach has won backing to help achieve her dreams of competing at next year's Paralympic Games.

Sharon Jones Barnes was awarded free access to Hackney's GLL-run leisure centres as well as support for her London 2012 ambitions and coaching of other players.

Sharon was given the award by the Council's Youth Sport Fund, in partnership with charity GLL Sport Foundation. The former legal secretary, who trains at Britannia Leisure Centre, already has a host of national championship titles under her belt. She said: "The support from Hackney and GLL has helped me to finance the training and coaching I need as a wheelchair badminton player. It's also a big bonus to have a venue with the facilities I need to train."

As the temperature dropped dramatically outside, over 250 older residents came together to enjoy some hot soup at a Hackney Homes' winter warmer event.

Visitors to the free event at the Round Chapel, in Lower Clapton, on 16 November, mingled with old and new friends, while getting advice on health, keeping warm, saving energy and tips on how they could give something back to the community in retirement.

Free scarves, gloves, hot water bottles and bags of fruit were on offer – as well as relaxing massages and delicious hot soup to keep everyone warm and happy. The Zumba exercise class proved popular – with many taking to the floor to shake a leg.

Jane Keyes, 84, from Regents estate, E8, said: “This is my fourth time at this event. I think it's a wonderful service and the people who put it on are very generous. I'm glad so many people came as some people are in real need. These kind of events prove Hackney has a soft heart.” Hackney Homes' gardeners and maintenance staff assisted residents with repair queries and gave out free plants to brighten up their homes.

Other stalls which offered free advice and services to the over 55s included East London Food Access, Advocacy for Caribbean Elders, Hackney Walks, Massageworks, Sunrise Zumba Class and The Amazings.

Resident Esther Fasoranti, 71, said: “This event is a very good idea because it brings people together. I know so many people in Hackney and here I get to see my friends and meet more friends. Right now I'm having hot tea and soup – what more do you need? I'll definitely be coming back next year!”

Neehara Wijeyesekera, from Hackney Homes, said: “Events such as this are a great way for residents to meet their neighbours and get valuable information to help them with preparing for the winter months.”

RESIDENTS joined ex-service men and women, and civic dignitaries to remember the fallen at the borough's Remembrance Sunday parade and church service on 13 November.

Every second Sunday in November is traditionally the day put aside each year to remember all those who have given their lives in wars and conflicts past and present.

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas, led the proceedings, which began with a march from Hackney Town Hall to St John-at-Hackney Church, via Mare Street and Lower Clapton Road.

Taking part in the parade

“ We must never forget the bravery and sacrifice of those who served during the World Wars and conflicts since ” were representatives from the Normandy Veterans Association, Royal British Legion and members of other local associations including the Jewish Lads and Girls Brigade Band and the Red Cross. Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, and Hackney MPs Meg Hillier and Diane Abbott also attended the event.

On arrival at the church, the Speaker laid a wreath at the Hackney Cenotaph to commemorate those who lost their lives fighting for their country. Father Rob Wickham led the service, which featured readings about peace and forgiveness and ended with the National Anthem.

The procession then marched back to the Town Hall and culminated with a salute and the laying of wreaths at the war memorial.

Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: “It is an honour to represent Hackney this

"There are many local families who have been affected by the wars, and I would like to give special mention to the men and women from Hackney – past and present – who dedicated their lives to serving their country."

Elsewhere in the borough Deputy Speaker, Cllr Jessica Webb, attended a Remembrance Day service at St Leonard's Church, in Shoreditch High Street, and laid wreaths at the church's war memorial.

The regeneration game

Bill Sheehy, Chair of the Woodberry Down Community Organisation, shows off the regeneration plans for the area

BILL Sheehy is keen to build and develop the community spirit around his Woodberry Down neighbourhood.

A former businessman and builder, Bill realised that due to health reasons construction was a difficult industry to continue working in – so he made the decision to slow down and become more involved with the community where he lived.

As a result, he joined Woodberry Down Community Organisation (WDCO) – an elected body of tenants and residents that steers the area's regeneration – seven years ago.

The regeneration, delivered in partnership with the Council, Hackney Homes, Berkeley Homes and Genesis Housing, is set to transform the area with thousands of new homes and community facilities.

When the opportunity came up for a new WDCO Chair, Bill knew that with his knowledge and experience he had something to offer. And he hoped to focus on resident involvement, as well as participation and improved management, across the former estate.

Now, a few months into the position, there are big decisions ahead – and the Limerick-born, father-of-two wants to make sure residents are on board.

“The role of WDCO is to help people make choices – even small ones. We aim to achieve a good community feeling around Woodberry Down.

“If we work together and help each other, I am confident we can keep a good community spirit,” he says.

Bill is also eager to welcome new people to “Young people are what make Woodberry Down – there is a lot of good work being done by many people here” the area. “Residents of the private development within Woodberry Park are still part of our community,” he adds.

Getting young people into employment is another cause close to Bill's heart – and through his role as a board member of the Manor House Development

Trust (MHDT) – he has seen the benefits of the Trust's support of young people with training and employment opportunities.

“I've been a board member since 2008, and it is great as both WDCO and the MHDT gel together and work closely with young people. As a community we cannot move along without taking the younger generation with us,” he says.

“Young people are what make Woodberry Down – there is a lot of good work being done by many people here.

We're striving to have even more opportunities for young people here and wider Hackney,” he concludes.

Residents can help each other look after the borough's green spaces by planting fruit, veg and flowers – and learn new skills while they're at it

A helping hand...

SOMETHING new – and fresh – is starting on streets and estates right across Hackney: a garden swap scheme.

If a resident with a garden is unable to look after it, they can sign up to Garden Swap. Hackney Homes will then match the garden with a greenfingered volunteer who will help maintain it.

Residents can even grow flowers or vegetables as a group – making once unused space much more productive.

Those who want to get involved with the scheme can take advantage of free gardening-related training courses from Hackney Homes, as well as exciting trips and days out with teams of experienced gardeners.

Hackney Homes Head of Building Maintenance, Jim Paterson, said: "The interest in the Garden Swap scheme has been promising and we look forward to matching residents so that they can build long-term friendships and help transform their gardens."

Wat-er way to travel

THE waterways of the Lower Lea Valley are at the heart of a regeneration project which aims to redevelop East London as a 'water city' as part of the legacy of the 2012 Games.

Spectators visiting the Olympic Park next year, will be able to use the waterways as an alternative, and more picturesque, mode of transport to the Games.

Next summer, a waterbus service will run between Tottenham Hale and Homerton Road Bridge, and from Limehouse Basin to Old Ford Lock. Spectators can then enter the Olympic Park from both disembarkation sites. The waterbuses will cover the route in 50 minutes from Tottenham, and 30 minutes from Limehouse, at a top speed of four miles per hour.

Prior to the Games, the waterbus will also stop at Three Mills for those wishing to explore the 18th-century House Mill, Three Mills Green or visit the amenities around Bromley-by-Bow.

The River Lee has spent many years in the shadow of its more famous rival, the Thames, but next year, the Lee and its tributaries will take centre stage at the heart of the renaissance of East London. John Middleton, Head of

Waterbuses will run between Tottenham Hale and Limehouse Basin

Economic Development, London Thames Gateway Development Corporation, said: "The River Lee is the spine of East London and this redevelopment project supports our desire to stimulate additional development to drive a waterside renaissance."

Improvements to the River Lee have been funded by British Waterways, Transport for London and Hackney Council.

Borough wins cycling award

HACKNEY has picked up a London Cycling Campaign award for the best project for children or young people for its Hackney Bikers' breakfast scheme.

It has resulted in 845 children cycling to school – and a 58 per cent increase in overall numbers compared to pre-project figures.

The Council's Streetscene Team worked closely with 15 schools across the borough, providing resources including posters, stickers and bike mechanics. Tom Bogdanowicz, from the London Cycling Campaign, said: "Judges were highly impressed by the Hackney programme – it took a great idea and multiplied it to encourage hundreds of schoolchildren to cycle more often."

Cloud Cuckoo Land

2-4 Dec, 12-6pm, Blackall Studios, 73 Leonard St, EC2A 4QS

BARREN, industrial Hackney Wick may seem a continent away from tropical lagoons and moonlit forests, but a new exhibition from British graffiti-scape artist, Xenz, bridges the two landscapes with the aid of a spray can and fertile imagination. Created over two years in the confines of a dark Hackney warehouse, 'Cloud Cuckoo Land' offers a panoramic view of Xenz's fantasy world, where peculiar plants, insects and birds meet with urban iconography.

"It is a kind of childhood fantasy of setting sail to discover a lost world, but ending up in an opium den in Singapore," explains Xenz.

"Living as an artist is seen as living in cuckoo land by many people and I want to celebrate this by showing people what my dreams look like."

Little Noise Sessions: Elbow

22 Nov, St John-at-Hackney Church, E5 OPD

FOR the first time, St John-at-Hackney Church turned into a festival venue when it hosted some of the biggest names in British music this month for a series of fund-raising charity gigs in aid of charity Mencap. The 'Little Noise Sessions', curated by DJ and TV presenter Jo Whiley, moved to the Clapton venue, known for its architecture and great acoustics, after five years at Islington's Union Chapel. Headlining at these intimate gigs were Elbow, Coldplay's Chris Martin and Jonny Buckland, Marina and the Diamonds, Goldfrapp, Sinéad O'Connor and Example. The first night kicked off with support acts in the form of 21-year-old new artist Ren Harvieu and Hackney-born singer-songwriter Maverick Sabre. Elbow seemed in their element at this intimate venue, with singer Guy Garvey chatting and joking with the crowd and getting everyone singing along. The band even marked their 20th anniversary with a mid-concert toast. The set was a combination of ballads and uptempo songs taken mostly from their two most recent albums. They saved the best for last and sent the crowd home with 'One Day Like This' ringing in their ears.

Edward's Rd, E9 7FS.

REVIEW

Little Noise Sessions: Marina and the Diamonds

23 Nov, St John-at-Hackney Church, E5 0PD

IF anyone suspected that camp died with the 1980s, Marina and the Diamonds are proof that it is alive and sequin-coated. The half-Welsh, half-Greek 26-year-old singer rose to public acclaim as runner-up in the BBC's Sound of 2010 poll, since which time she and her fictional backing band have won over audiences with their high-energy, high-drama ballads and pop anthems. Marina's latest album, 'Radioactive' offers more of the same catchy beats, sassy lyrics and stunning vocal arrangements.

She cites musical influences from Blondie to Britney Spears and all of these elements shine through in her act.

On her MySpace page, she explains to fans that "I'm Marina. You are the diamonds." Judging by the swoons, cat-calls and jiving at St John's, it seems that she indeed has the power to leave the masses feeling shiny and special.

Win tickets to Cinderella

LONDON'S most fantastically bombastic pantomime team has opened a new show at Hackney Empire.

Susie McKenna, who pens the ever-extending run of hit seasonal shows at the theatre with music writer Steven Edis, takes on 'Cinderella' this year.

Kat B and Tony Whittle terrify in the roles of the Ugly Sisters, while Sophia Ragavelas stars as the downtrodden, glass-slipper wearing, prince-captivating, rags-to-riches Cinderella. Hackney Empire pantos receive universal acclaim from audiences and critics alike and is known as the best theatre night out this side of Christmas.

'Cinderella' runs until 8 January at Hackney Empire, 291 Mare St, E8 1EJ. Tickets start at £9.50. For more info, call: 020 8985 2424; or visit: www.hackneyempire.co.uk

For a chance to win a pair of tickets, send a postcard to Cinderella competition, Hackney Today, Room 82, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1EA; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 5 December. Submissions must include a telephone number and address. Winners will be pulled out of a hat.

Staff from BSix College pick up the Times Educational Supplement award for provider of the year; an innovative class at the college (below)

Winning formula

A CLAPTON college that transformed itself after being in danger of closure, has been hailed a 'phenomenal' education institution.

BSix College was crowned education provider of the year at the 2011 Times Educational Supplement (TES) Further Education Awards.

The accolade recognises bold, imaginative and innovative initiatives that better the reputation of a college.

Judges heard that following difficulties five years ago, the college had increased student numbers by 50 per cent, launched an extended programme to prepare students for work and higher education, and established summer schools at top-flight universities including Oxford and York.

Judges said: "Back in 2006 ... it was in danger of closure. Now it is oversubscribed. The college is just phenomenal. The staff are outstanding. They really go the extra mile."

BSix principal, Ken Warman, said: "It is difficult to explain how much this means to us. It is the biggest tribute to the dedication of our students and staff we could receive."

BBC journalist and Dragons' Den presenter Evan Davis gave out the award, at a ceremony in London, on 11 November.

News in brief

Clapton girls got talent

STUDENTS at Clapton Girls' Academy showed panache as stage performers when they took part in their school's new talent show.

The competition showcased a variety of acts including vocalists, musicians, dance troupes and indie bands. Magician Milly Croft, 13, took first prize, with singer Zoe Sadler, 16, and contemporary dancer Jasmyn Fisher-Ryner, 14, in the runner-up spots.

Theatre and film school director, Anna Fiorentini, awarded scholarships to attend her performance academy in Hackney for many of the line-up.

Meanwhile, successful playwright and Hackney Empire panto creator, Susie McKenna, gave out places on the theatre's Youth Takeover Weekend project.

Sixth former, Sophie Jemeljanova, who helped choreograph the 17 November show said: "The whole experience was absolutely amazing – from planning the event to the live final. Even though we were all under pressure, it's definitely an experience me and the girls would love to relive again and again."

The show, called Clapton's Got Talent, raised over £1,500 for extracurricular activities.

Headteacher Cheryl Day said she hoped it will become a regular fixture in the academy's calendar.

A total art-burst

CHILDREN with communication difficulties are being offered free workshops to improve their confidence and social skills.

Hackney-based social enterprise, Artburst, is looking for children with language needs to take part in its 'Speak Out' sessions.

The workshops use storytelling, drama, art and music to improve self-esteem among youngsters with speech problems.

They are targeted at two to five-year-olds and 10 to 12-year-olds and will run throughout the borough next year.

Penny Embden, co-director, said: "Artburst's Speak Out workshops offer a really valuable opportunity for children in the borough with speech and language difficulties."

Ra'neil (Malcolm Kamulete) and Gem (Giacomo Mancini) starred in Channel 4's drama 'Top Boy'

XAVIEN Russell, 12, played Michael in the controversial Channel 4 drama 'Top Boy', which was set on a fictional estate in Hackney, and tackled the hard-hitting subjects of drug dealing and gangs. He trains at the Anna Fiorentini Performing Arts School in Clapton.

YHW: How did you get into acting?

XR: "I signed up to drama school and I've been there for four years now. I've been performing at the Hackney Empire every year doing dancing and singing."

YHW: What did you enjoy about being in Top Boy?

XR: "I liked the filming and being off set cracking jokes. It was a lot of fun."

YHW: What can young people learn from the character Ra'neil in Top Boy?

XR: "Don't do drugs, don't sell it, stay away from anyone who is trying to push you into it, and go to school."

YHW: What would you tell other young people who want to go down a creative route?

XR: "If you enjoy acting or dancing keep on doing that – don't go and start messing about, keep yourself to yourself and enjoy life."

Life through a lens

ASPIRING photojournalist Greer Chester, 21, was intrigued by the 'Occupy' protest camp outside St Paul's Cathedral. So he went down to find out more about the day-to-day life of the activists who have been living outside the iconic building since 15 October. These are a selection of some of the images he captured.

Inspired by the Occupy protests in the Wall Street area of New York, and in other capital cities around the world, the London protestors now face a court battle to evict them.

Occupy describe themselves as 'an international protest movement directed against economic and social inequality worldwide'.

A design from Headway East London's new greeting cards range, based on a scene inspired by its eight-hour dance marathons

A HACKNEY charity has unveiled a series of greeting cards based on its famous fund-raising dance marathons.

The cards depict imaginary scenes from Headway East London's annual danceathon, which sees participants bopping away for eight hours to raise money for people affected by brain injuries. The designs were initially painted as murals by charity members and volunteers. All money raised from the sale of the cards will support activities at Headway House. For more info, call: 020 7749 7790; or e-mail: support-us@headwayeastlondon.org

Fight against HIV

THE Speaker of Hackney praised a new HIV centre at Homerton hospital during a visit to find out more about its development.

Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: "The creation of an HIV centre will be a fantastic addition to the care that is offered for HIV patients, where I hope treatments will advance."

Work is set to begin on the centre next autumn. Once completed, it will play a crucial role in supporting the sexual health team, based at the hospital, that provides a range of services for people with HIV, including antenatal care and psychological support.

The Speaker also presented a £850 cheque, raised by Council and NHS staff for the centre, adding to a further £4,500 donated by the previous Speaker.

People across the borough can show their support for those living with the illness with a range of events to mark World Aids Day on 1 December.

East London HIV charity, Positive East, is holding a fundraising night, while Mildmay hospital, which offers care services for people with HIV, is raising money for its medical unit in Shoreditch.

Dr Jose Figueroa, from NHS East London and the City, said: "HIV is a treatable condition; people who are diagnosed early can live healthy lives and reduce the risk of passing the infection on to others.

If you've had unprotected sex it's important to have an HIV test."

There are 1,352 residents in the City and Hackney, between the ages of 15 and 59, currently accessing care for HIV.

News in brief

Light a candle for a loved one

A CANDLE-LIT remembrance service is to be held for deceased family members and friends at St Joseph's Hospice on Mare Street.

The annual 'Light Up A Life' event gives visitors a chance to remember loved ones who have died by dedicating a candle and card to them.

During the service, a 'Tree of Remembrance' holding the candles will be lit and the cards can be viewed on the hospice's memory wall.

Kavin Ashby, who has attended the event for the past 13 years in memory of his wife, said: "It brings great help to people who have lost someone in the year or in the past, as Christmas is always a hard time.

"The service is very moving and brings together all types of people for a wonderful evening in the hospice."

Light Up A Life 2011 takes place on 1 December, 7pm, at St Joseph's Hospice, Mare Street, E8. For more info, call: 020 8525 6000; or visit: www.stjh.org.uk

Priority parking planned for residents

Plans are being developed to prioritise parking for residents and local businesses around the Olympic Park during the London 2012 Games.

The Olympic Park is home to many of the major Games venues and will attract large numbers of spectators, some of whom may try to park as close as they can to these venues. This could cause congestion that may affect road safety and how you go about your day-to-day activities.

To manage traffic and parking for the benefit of the local community during the Games, a temporary resident and business parking protection area is being proposed in Hackney. This area will include both existing controlled parking zones, and streets where there are currently no parking controls to prevent spectators from parking near the venue.

The new parking protection area is planned to operate from Monday to Sunday, 8am–9pm during the Games. Affected controlled parking zones would have their days and times extended to match.

Under the plans, residents and businesses near the Olympic Park who are in existing controlled parking zones will still be able to use their Hackney parking permits and will not need to apply for any further permits to park during the Games.

Those residents who live in an area with no existing parking controls will be able to apply for a free parking permit valid for the duration of the Games.

Further information for residents and local businesses about registering for parking and visitors' permits will be provided once arrangements have been agreed in 2012.

Have your say

The formal consultation on the temporary changes to parking in Hackney for the Games is now underway. This is part of the process to make new traffic orders, which are the legal basis to introduce changes to the public highway.

You can view copies of the traffic orders and related documents between 9am–5pm, Mondays to Fridays in the reception area of Hackney Council's offices at Keltan House, 89-115 Mare Street London, E8 4RU.

Any objections or other representations about the proposed Orders should be sent in writing to Tom McCourt, Assistant Director (Public Realm) at the above address by 19 December 2011.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Hackney Council's helpdesk on 020 8356 2897. You can also view the outline maps on the London 2012 website at: www.london2012.com/accessandparking

To Lee or not to Lea?

Top left, clockwise: a plan showing the proposed canals in 1767; an industrial building at Clapton c1830; flooding in 1910; Strong's Farm; a whimsical sketch of what the River Lea used to look like, and how it looked in 1885 (inset); & the Robin Hood pub's landing stage in 1890

THE borough's eastern boundary is marked by the River Lea. Or is it the Lee?

Much debate surrounds the correct spelling, with both names found on official maps and in common usage.

Upstream from Hertford the name is usually Lea, but downstream both terms are used – although Lea occurs more often in associated place names, such as Lea Bridge Road.

Over time there have been more than 25 variations of the word – the first recorded use dates from the 9th century – but the name is probably much older, possibly deriving from the Celtic 'lug' meaning bright or light.

Running from Leagrave in Bedfordshire, to Leamouth on the Thames, the river once marked the western boundary of the Danelaw – the part of Anglo-Saxon England ruled by the Danes.

The Anglo Saxon Chronicle tells how in 895 Alfred the Great outmanoeuvred the Danes, who had sailed upstream to make camp, by having the lower reaches of the river drained, thus leaving the enemy ships stranded – and creating Hackney Marshes.

Many of the streams and channels in the lower reaches past Hackney Wick were originally developed as transport routes and millstreams, some of which can be traced back to the 11th century.

Development accelerated when the first ever Navigation Improvement Act was passed in 1425 – which introduced the River Lea Commissioners, who ran the river, followed by another act five years later allowing landowners to charge tolls in order to pay for improvement work. By 1571, a further act was introduced, which sped up the development of the river as a major transport route in and out of London.

It was during this period that the Lee Navigation was created, which the river either runs through, or alongside, for much of its 42 mile length. Because the Navigation was created by

Acts of Parliament, in which the spelling was 'Lee', that is the form always used for the man-made part of the river.

Construction of the New River, which opened in 1613 to bring fresh drinking water into London, depleted the Lea's sources so much that watermills and freight traffic were badly affected.

Parliament approved more improvements and created a new board of trustees in 1739, leading to the building of more turnpikes, to control the flow of water.

By the 1760s, it was decided to replace most of these with the locks still in use today, as well as cutting new channels to straighten some of the route's many lengthy bends.

More new locks and sections were built under an act of 1850, and in 1868, the Lea Conservancy Act introduced a board that would control the river and navigation until the nationalisation of the canal system under the 1947 Transport Act.

By the 19th century, both the river and navigation had become industrialised, utilising the water supply for both power generation and transport, although market gardening and dairy farming still flourished for many years. Hackney Marshes were never heavily industrialised, although the Hackney part of the river and navigation was still the location for nationally important companies such as Carless, Capel and Leonard's Chemical Works and Latham's Timber.

Today most of the factories and warehouses are gone, although it's still possible to discover traces of the area's industrial heritage within the Lea Valley Regional Park, which now follows the river from Ware to East India Dock. The Park contains venues for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, with water transport being used to move much of the construction and waste materials involved in their creation.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

ALI originally came to the UK from Afghanistan in 2007 at the age of 19. Unable to speak English and unsure of what he wanted to do with his life, Ali faced real challenges. Not one to quit, he enrolled at college and set about developing his spoken and written English skills.

On leaving college however, things did not get any easier, and Ali found it difficult to get a job. Desperate to work, Ali was introduced to Training for Life and Hoxton Apprentice this February – where his potential was recognised. He was recruited into the programme as part of the Apprentice front of house team.

Ali focused hard on developing his skills and successfully completed a NVQ Level 2 in Customer Service, and graduated from the Apprentice to find work around the corner at the RE London Shoreditch hotel, where he is now a much valued member of the team. In recognition of his success, Ali was named Hospitality Apprentice of the Year at Training for Life's annual fund-raising dinner this month.

Baked lemon tart with lemon curd

Serves 6

Cooking time
25-30 mins

Chilling time
13 hours

Ingredients

- 185g Rich Tea biscuits, crushed to fine crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 90g butter, melted
- Pure icing sugar, to serve

Lemon curd

- 3 lemons
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup caster sugar
- 125g butter, chopped

Method

- Lightly grease a 2cm/1inch-deep, 24cm/10inch (base) loose-based, round, flan dish. Combine biscuit crumbs, cinnamon, nutmeg and butter in a bowl. Press into the base and sides of dish. Refrigerate for one hour

- To make lemon curd: finely grate rind of one lemon. Juice all lemons. Whisk eggs and sugar together in a heatproof bowl until well combined. Add lemon rind and 2/3 cup of lemon juice, whisking constantly until well combined. Place bowl over a saucepan of simmering water (do not allow base to touch water). Cook, stirring with a wooden spoon, for 20 to 25 minutes or until thick and custard-like. Do not allow to boil. Remove from heat and whisk in butter
- Pour lemon curd into chilled tart case. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight. Dust with icing sugar and serve with clotted or double cream.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain a NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800.

Parking controls

RESIDENTS and businesses can have their say about a proposal to introduce a controlled parking zone (CPZ) in Victoria Park and South Homerton. The Council has received complaints from residents living in these areas about the difficulties they experience finding a parking space close to home, and many have requested that parking controls are introduced to help solve the problem.

Surveys show the demand for parking spaces is very high in certain streets, but the Council has launched a consultation to gather as many views about the proposed introduction of a CPZ in the area as possible. The feedback will be used to inform the decision-making process and a CPZ will only be introduced where there is majority support for the scheme.

Residents can find out more at drop-in information events in November. The next one will be held on 29 November, from 5-7pm, at Homerton Library, Homerton High Street, E9.

The proposals can also be viewed online at: www.hackney.gov.uk/parking-hys.

Or you can have your say by requesting a paper questionnaire and freepost envelope.

The consultation ends on 23 December. If the idea of the CPZ is supported, the earliest it will be introduced is next April. For more info, e-mail: consultparking@hackney.gov.uk, or call: 020 8356 8877
